Plants for the Planet

Botanic Gardens Conservation International (BGCI) provides a global voice for all botanic gardens, championing and celebrating their inspiring work. BGCI is the world's largest plant conservation network, active in over 100 countries. Its mission is "to mobilize botanic gardens and engage partners in securing plant diversity for the well-being of people and the planet". BGCI plays a leading role in the implementation of the UN's Global Strategy for Plant Conservation. It has helped to establish many new botanic gardens and provides training in all aspects of the work of botanic gardens. BGCI documents and provides information on the great diversity of plants held in the world's botanic gardens and supports conservation and education programmes around the world.
